Which follows me ever and near,
Which smiling eyes and amber hair.
With volcele's lips, jet with breath of prayer,
That I feel, but cannot hear.

Lie low in a marble sleep; stretch my arms for the clasp of old, But the empty sir is strangely cold, And my vigil alone I keep. There's a sinless brow with a radient crown And a cross laid down in the dust; There's a smile where never a shade comes And lears no more from those dear eyes So sweet in their innocent trust. Ah, well! and summer is coming again, Singing her same old song; But, oh! it sounds like a sob of pain, As it floats in the sunshine and the rain, O'er nearts of the world's great throng. Does the language of this Reservation apply to and include the 1,500 acres claimed by Morrill, which had been patented to Gallatin, and so actually carried into grant ten years before, and thereby investing Gallatin with the absolute fee simple, good against all, including the State, except only her right to tax as she taxed other people' lands, and to forfielt for non-payment of such taxes? The Celebrated Jackson County Land Sult. LOT. M. MORRILL vs. ARMSTRONG AND OTHERS. To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

As the press seems to be laboring under egregious errors in relation to this case, recently tried before the U. S. Court at Charleston, I beg leave to briefly state through your paper the material facis and present condition of this and Morrill's other suits. In 1854, he, with other Maine speculators, assumed to purchase for a nominal consideration of what is known as the North American Land Company, whose head-quarters is Philadelphia, about 58,000 acres of land, lying mostly in Jackson county in this State. In 1857, Morrill in whose name the deed was taken, brought about twenty ejectment suits in the Federal Court, in which Judge Brockenbrough then presided, and one of these is the suit against Armstrong and others recently tried at Charleston, in which was claimed 1,500 acres Charleston, in which was claimed 1,500 acres only.

At the time Morrill commenced these suits the case of McFarlan and others against Miller and Lusher, involving title to about 300,000 acres of land lying in Cabell and adjoining counties, was pending in the same Court; and in the Spring of 1859 was tried at Charleston before Judge Brockenbrough, the trial lasting thirty-one days, and resulted in a verdict for the plaintiffs. That case turned wholly on the construction the Judge gave to a certain reservation contained in a patent to General Samuel Smith, late of Baltimore, dated in 1796, under which the plaintiffs claimed. The defence in that case was conducted by those among the ablest lawyers in Virginia, of whom the late Hon. Geo. W. Summers was one; and on the partiof the plaintiffs by Colonel Benjamin H. Smith and the late Judge Fry. The point was most elaborately discussed, and very maturely con-Spring of 1859 was tried at Charleston Benjamin H. Smith and the late Judge Fry. The point was most elaborately discussed, and very maturely considered by Judge Brockenbrough, who gave a construction in favor of the plaintiffs. The decision was acquiesced in by the defendants and their counsel, and approved by the most eminent legal minds of the State, including the most eminent Judges of the then Virginia Court of Appeals. The agent of Morrill, Col. Bennett from Maine, was present during the whole of that trial, and became so well satisfied with the correctness of the Judge's ruling upon the point on which Morrill's cases depended, he immediately thereafter returned to Maine, stating the decision was decisive against Morrill's cases, and has had nothing to do with the cases since, at least in West Virginia. The same North American Land Company managed in 1852 to get $12,500 from McFarlan and others for its release to some 90,000 acres, on which they natents (dated prior to Samuel its release to some 90,000 acres, on which it had patents (dated prior to Samuel Smith's aforesaid) that were forfeited in 1836, like those in Jackson county, and ment remained undiminished which, with the title, made the office desirable to him.

The conduct of this incumbent in relation to these Morrill cases since, has been so extraordinary as to have attracted the attention and often excited the astonishment and reprehension of all who have witnessed it. I shall not stop here to particularize—some other time and place will better suit a full disclosure.

The 1,500 acres claimed by Morrill in the case tried was granted to Albert Gallatin by the State of Virginia, by patent dated February 10, 1785. July 1st, 1796, ten years after, the State granted an inclusive patent similar in all respects to that of Samuel Smith, before mentioned, with a reservation in like terms of language. This patent includes within its exterior boundaries, the 1,500 acres contended to the Stop acres claimed by Morrill in his other suits, and all which was patented as early as 1786 and 1787. When Virginis declared her independece in 1776 she assumed the rights the King held before, to all vacant and unappropriated lands within her boundaries, in which was included nearly all lying west of the Alleghanies, though there had been acquired thereto many settlement or pre emption rights, military rights by virtue of proclamations previously made by the King and Royal Government of the conducts his Courts, and forms, and have appealed to the Supon the evidence. Thus shood the parties of course, excepted to this ruling pont of the storious and have appealed to the Supon the revidence. The defendants, of course, excepted to this ruling ponts have appealed to pre emption rights, military rights by virtue of proclamations previously made by the King and Royal Governors, rights by virtue of previous payments to the King's receiver general, &c., none of which had been patented or carried into grant. In 1779, at the same time she established her land office, the legislature appointed boards of commissioners to settle and determine these "rights of claimers to unmine these "rights of claimers to unpatented lands" (as they were termed in the Legislative Acts) "under the former and present Government," and report, so patents might be granted to such as were found to be just and to such as were found to be just and valid. These boards progressed very slowly with the work. When the war closed in 'S3, there was a great rush for these lands lying between the Alleghanies and Ohio River. All west of that river the Indians then held. Warrants were purchased of her Treasurer at 2 cents per acre, and located by entry or entry and survey, helter skelter, without system, interlocking and overlapping in all forms; and in many cases patents were taken out, new locaters often interfering with the existing inchoate rights of others. Prior to June 1783, many surveyors had returned choate rights of others. Prior to June 1788, many surveyors had returned plats including in their exterior boundaries the rights of these "prior claimants," a term then, synonymous with "claimers to unpatented lands," which they deducted out and allowed for. To authorize the Governor to issue patents on such survey, and similar plats afterwards made and returned, reserving the same in the patent for the "prior claimants," the act of 1788 was passed, two years after the patent to Gallatin had been issued, under which Morrill claims. To carry out this act the Governor, Attorney General and other officers, constructed a form of patent, containing a reservation which was varied Fin's plat, which included in its exterior boundaries 427,460 acres, is in these words: "An allowance of 227,460 acres is made in the calculation of the area of this plat for prior claimants containsin's plat, which included in its exte ways to be understood that the survey upon which this grant is founded includes 227,460 acres, exclusive of the above quantity of 200,000 acres, all of above quantity of 200,000 acres, all of which having a preference by law to the warrants and rights upon which this grant is founded, liberty is reserved that the same shall be firm and valid, and the same shall be firm and valid, and the grant is fall be no bar in either law or equity to the confirmation of the title or tules to the same, as before mentioned and reserved, with its appurtenances." The then existing rights of "prior claimants" or "claimers of unpatented lands" had a preference by virtue of previous acts of the Legislavirtue of previous acts of the Legisla-ture in their behalf. Does the language of this Reservation taxes? What reason or sense for the State's seserving liberty that Gallatin's patent granted 10 years before, "should be firm and valid," "may be carried into grant" when he had had the grant or patent in his pocket for 10 years? or that the grant to Hopkins "should be no bar in either law or equity to the confirmation of" such grant to Gallatin? Suppose Gallatin had happened in the Governor's office with his patent 10 years old in his pocket, and the Governor had called his attention to the reservation he was about to insert in the patent to he was about to insert in the patent to Hopkins, which the present incumbent says was for Gallatin's benefit and protection—what think you Gallatin would have said? I think he would have re-plied, if his risibles would have allow-ed—"Well Governor, I think you had ed—"Well Governor, I think you had better further reserve in my favor in the patent you are about to grant friend Hopkins—"tiberty," that no rain shall fall upon, nor the birds of Heaven fly over, my fifteen hundred acre tract." Besides, if it could be supposed the officers were such fools as to have so intended, the reservation would be absolutely void in law, so far as Gallatin was concerned—he being as much a stranger to the State as any other person holding lands therein in fee simple. But when the lauguage of the reservation is applied to lands held by inchotion is applied to lands held by incho tion is applied to lands held by incho-ate equitable titles, as the titles of "claims to unpatented lands," or "prior claimants," every word is pertinent and absolutely essential, for without it the State would have transferred the legal title, (which passes only by pat-ent or grant,) to one, when in equity and justice it belongs to another. The latter interpretation is the one given to latter interpretation is the one given to taxes? What reason or sense for the of the Morrill case.

Hopkins found the 227,460 acres within his boundaries, held by those inchoate equitable titles, which the owners or their assigns, afterwards carried interest of the control of th or their assigns, afterwards carried into grant and now hold. These lands neither Hopkins nor his assigns have ever claimed. But to his disappointment he found nearly all the 200,000 acres he had purchased and paid for, covered by patents older than his; nor did he, or his successor Watson, regard their title, being merely colorable, of much value, until the Legislature recognizing: the fact the State had cognizing: the fact the State had granted the same lands to different per-sons, passed the act in 1827 and subse-quent Acts, forfeiting the titles held by older patentees for non-payment of taxes, and giving them to the holders of junior grants, who should have paid their taxes and put settlers on the lands Watson who had purchased of Hopkins with General J. J. Jackson, of Parkersburg, for his legal adviser, recorded his deed in 1827, and in that year com-menced to settle the tracts held by pat-ents senior to his, but which his cover-Southern and the modern imto his aiready terms, expects to and does not into the same time, viz: in 1845. Judge B. ruled the plaintiffs in that case took nothing by the release, inasmuch as all the company's title had inured to, and merged in the Smith's, upon its forfeited and paid all tax-or all the release sensor grants within his boundary. As the inclusive patent to Samuel M. Hopkins, in 1796, held the same relation to Morrill's lands in Jackson county, as the Smith's did to those in Cabell, Morrill and his associates avoided trials while Judge B. continued on the bench, but resorted to various means to get rid of the cases by some sort of compromise. But the defendants having purchased and paid for, and for which they have always paid taxes, notwith title—and so the cases thung until the war commenced, when Judge B. ceased war commenced to the lands they paid for, and gotten all the lands they paid for. ed and was junior to, as he supposed with a view to obtain something from this source, in case the older titles should become forfeited; and by 1834 had settled 170 families, equal to 800 title—and so the cases hung until the war commenced, when Judge B. ceased to be Judge; and in 1862 or early in 1863 the present incumbent while Morrill was a member of the U.S. Senate,—and doubtless aided him to get the appointment—succeeded to his place, at a time when this court was a thing of form merely to keep up a show of Federal authority, while nearly all his district was in the military occupation of the rebels, and his labors merely nominal; but the emolument remained undiminished which, with the title, made the office desirable to him.

Instruction to the case and yet yas when that trary to evidence—to tell them Hopter in the claiming under him, had gotten all the lands they paid for, or for which they were chargeable with axes. Morrill, and those he claims under, have never to this day improved a foot or settled a person, nor was there a cent of taxes paid on their title by any one previous to 1845, when they pretended to redeem—59 years after the patent issued to Gallatin; 9 years after its absolute forfeiture, and inuring, as we say, to Watson, and 18 years after Watson had been in the actual possession and settled and built up the county. ORGANIC WEAKNESS, Immediately cured and full vigor restored.
This distressing affection, which renders dreadful consequences that may ensue. Now who that understands the subject will pretend to deny that the power of procreation is lost sooner by those failing into improper mabits than by the prudent? Besides being deprived of the pleasure of leasithy offspring, the most serious and desiructive symptoms of both body and mind arise. The system
